Week 7

Congratulations to Libby H who was awarded a Michael Palin All-Rounder Award to Shrewsbury School this week. These are always hotly contested but it was very clear that her skills in music, academia, sport, drama and art (I could go on...) stood her apart!

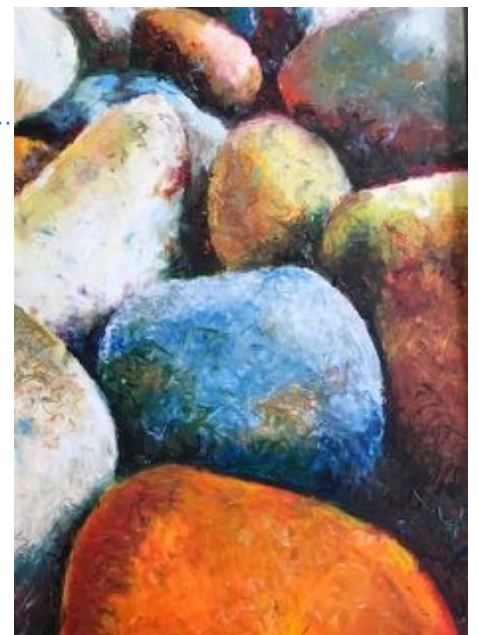

Huge thanks again to the Year 8 parents who have been working so hard and been so generous in redecorating the Year 8 Common Room this week as their leaving gift to the school. It looks amazing and future generations are going to love it. The children's task now will be to look after the room and make sure that they hand it to the next generation in a similar state to which they found it! I have no doubt that, with staff input and support, this room will be a fun and attractive space for many years to come.

Half Term is almost upon us so I would like to wish all of the children a well-deserved break. This is a long stretch in school and with the excitement of exams and Christmas festivities to come, they all deserve a good break.

This week in Tick Tock the Butterfly room we have been brushing up on our puzzle skills. We have enjoyed doing floor and table top puzzles, collaging with puzzle pieces and colouring our own puzzles.

The Butterflies also loved using the new performing arts centre for their music session with Becky.

The Caterpillar room having been having fun with Autumn leaves using them for painting and collecting them on walks
